

Module 3 challenge , provided a very good example of the limitation of depending on Excel to perform big data analysis. The coding task required a lot of testing and recoding. It was challenging to work through the logic and understand the output. The big data sets required iterations but displayed python's advantage over VBA.